Activation of latent Lyme borreliosis concurrent with a herpes simplex virus type 1 infection.

Gylfe A, Wahlgren M, Fahlen L, Bergstrom S.

Department of Molecular Biology, Umea University, Umea, Sweden

The case is reported of a 26-y-old woman with latent Lyme borreliosis that was concurrently activated with a herpes simplex virus type 1 infection. Immune suppression by stress may have caused activation of both infections.